NEWS of the WEEK

wo Great Projects Die
Washington, D. C.—Gloom reigns from Maine to Florida when announcement was made of the death of two huge New Deal projects through denial of further relief funds. Maine lost the $36,000,000 power scheme of harnessing the tides of Passamaquoddy Bay. Florida saw the dream vanish of a $25,000,000 trans-state canal connecting the Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico.

Church Gets Respite
Gloucester, Mass.—Started in a cabin in 1633, the First Parish church is housed in a building 108 years old. The question of abandoning the building was put to a vote of 42 parishioners. Because "modern youth lacks interest in religion," a majority decided that no other course was open, but voted to reconsider the matter again in September.

Chinese Art in Peril
Gibraltar — Carrying $50,000,000 worth of borrowed art back to China, the steamer Ranpura rounded on a sand bar in the Bay of Algiers. After Admiralty tugs had unloaded 300 tons, the liner was pulled off. The directors of Burlington House, London, who borrowed the collection for exhibition, were glad they had hired Chinese specialists to pack the treasures scientifically for their journey home.

Deluge For Rats
Berkley, Cal.—An old law just passed gives the City Clerk power to order all residents to fill their bat tubs, then pull the plugs at a given moment. The resulting deluge was supposed to flush out sewer rats.

Chemists Reveal Discoveries
Kansas City, Mo.—Two thousand scientists gathered for the 91st meeting of the American Chemical Society heard of the new wonders of science. One of them gave promise that sulphur injections might relieve arthritis, discovered from a study of finger-nail parings. Another described a cheap method of extracting inositol from a watery product of corn-starch. Mixed with nitric acid, it becomes an explosive comparable to nitro-glycerine.

Skipped Wrong Car
Napoleon, Ohio — When Harry Kier succeeded in breaking jail, his first idea was to get as far away as possible. Thumbing a ride on a highway, he landed straight in jail. The car he signalled was that of Sheriff George Bowers.

Assume Sports Importance
New York City—Shortly after the Illinois Athletic Commission suspended Phil Brubaker for rubbing colic on his hands to deaden pain in a recent battle with King Vinsky, officials of the American League ruled that Ed Link, Washington pitcher, must no longer rub up his numb fingers on a bag of chemicals in his hip pocket. To this, Ford Frick, president of the National League, has issued ratings that any shaking hands fraternizing between rival players will draw a fine of $10. He asks fans like to believe that ballplayers hate their opponents, but in two players squared off in a scrap, President Frick fined both $25.

New York Must Lose $100,000
New York City — Lillian Mendel, a jury verdict of $250,000 against Frederick A. Gimbel, of the department store family, alleging breach of promise. The judge has said that $100,000 is plenty, and ordered a retrial unless she is the $100,000 out.

DAYLIGHT SAVING IN EFFECT NEXT WEEK

Daylight Saving Time will go into effect next Sunday to conform to the general practice of recent years. Most people will set their clocks ahead upon retiring Saturday night, losing an hour of sleep, but that can be made up next September when standard time is resumed.

Less than ten days remain for farmers who wish to take advantage of the soil conservation program to file work sheets, the preliminary forms necessary to qualify farmers to apply for grants later this summer. A. K. Gardner, executive officer of the conservation program in Maine, reminds growers.

Filing a work sheet does not obligate a farmer to take part in the program. Mr. Gardner says, nor is the work sheet a contract in any sense of the word. But no farmer who does not have a work sheet on file can later decide to apply for a federal grant.

The work sheet calls for a list of the crops grown last year, the location of the farm and a minimum of other information. No information as to this year's crops is requested on the form. To quote the work sheet exactly, "Nothing contained herein shall place any obligation upon any person."

Quoting further from the regulations under the act, "Each person applying for a grant (later this year) will be required to show that work sheets have been executed covering all the land in the county owned, operated, or controlled by him."

Work sheets can be filled out at the local meetings still in progress throughout the state, and extension agents and county committeemen attend these meetings to assist the farmer in understanding and acting upon the program should he voluntarily decide to participate.

GORHAM HIGH HERE SATURDAY

Gould Academy Opens Eight-Game Baseball Schedule on Home Grounds

On Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock the Gorham High nine will oppose the local Academy team. The visitors have had the edge on the Bethel boys for some years and the game Saturday will find both teams fighting bitterly for supremacy. The cold weather and snow has limited practices for both clubs. At the time of writing the Academy boys have been outside for two practices only.

With such limited practice Coach Anderson has had little opportunity to pick a starting lineup, but it looks as though Littledale has his job clinched behind the bat; with Eddie Robertson without competition for first base. Lovejoy will likely start at second with Wentzell and R. Young at short and third. Parker Brown and O'Neill Robertson are making a strong bid for infield jobs and may depose the regulars should they falter.

The outfield will consist of R. Browne in the left garden and Quintly patrolling the center sections. Daniels or Stiles will be in right field depending on the pitching selection. Paul Daniels or Arthur Whitman will start on the mound with Bob Browne ready to hurl the first league game the following Wednesday at Norway.

There is a great deal of work to be done with only about a week to prepare a team for the opening game. A double session work-out was held last Saturday and perhaps by this week end the club will be in fair shape.

Following is the schedule for the season:

Sat. April 25—Gorham at Bethel
Wed. April 29—at Norway
Tues. May 5—at Gorham
Sat. May 9—Norway at Bethel
Wed. May 13—So. Paris at Bethel
Sat. May 16—Brigton at Bethel
Wed. May 20—at South Paris
Fri. May 29—at Bridgton

As the degree work took so long a time the worthy Lecturer presented a very short program consisting of a reading by Mrs. Ruth Hastings, two games, and a song, "There's a Wee House," by Rev. MacKillop of Franklin Grange.

The next meeting will be May 4 when the work of the third and fourth degrees will be done and a Harvest Supper served. Committee for supper: Florence Hastings, Rose Bartlett and Edith Howe.

Monday evening, May 4, is also the date for the annual meeting of the East Bethel Cemetery Association and it was suggested that the Cemetery meeting be held early in the evening so that the Grange meeting could be held the same evening at perhaps a little later than usual.

Fourteen members of Alder River Grange, the two candidates and one visitor were present at the program.

Alfalfa is unimportant in Maine. Only 373 farmers, less than one percent of the state's farmers, reported alfalfa production in 1934. Maine fell from thirty-seventh place among the states in alfalfa acreage in 1929 to forty-third in 1934, with a decrease of fifty-nine percent in acreage harvested.

YANKEE SPEECH DESERVES STUDY, SAYS DRAMATIST

Walter Prichard Eaton, well-known author and dramatic critic, writes of "Yankee Speech" in the April Yankee magazine, tells a new story about John Coolidge. It seems that his successor as Governor of Massachusetts asked Mr. Coolidge if it was that, when he was at the House, he managed to see so many callers each day, but he left his office at half-past five. This was his reply: "Perfectly simple—you talk back."

Mr. Eaton finds in the speech characteristic of New England of 19th century, before motor cars, movies, when the rural sections of New England were still comparatively isolated and self-sufficient certain rhythm and "tune" all its own. He says, "The Yankee vocabulary, the agility of mind and the dramatic suspension of the sentence, a slight but provocative syncopation, the emotional impressiveness, all make for a speech rhythm that is unique and fascinating, and which deserves exploration and exploitation by Yankee dramatists and Yankee audiences. And that doesn't mean in summer theatres where Broadway actors try out the first comedy about the Long Island cocktail crowd, before an audience of summer visitors, while the native Yankees of the region go to the movies and goggle at Garbo."

By way of doing its bit to help sufferers from the recent floods in New England, the publishers of Yankee have offered to send the next four issues free to new readers who donate $1 to the National Red Cross, through the Yankee Magazine office in Dublin, N. H. The donation, which may be assigned to any local Red Cross branch is made by Yankee in the donor's name. The offer has met enthusiastic response.

GEORGES JEAN, roast chef of the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, New York City, who supervises the cooking of 10,000 pounds of meat every month for Manhattan's gourmets, is shown here in the main kitchen of the hotel as he prepares a roast of beef.

In one of his few spare moments, M. Jean recently figured out that he is called upon to prepare 5,000 pounds of roast beef per month, 4,000 pounds of lamb, and 900 pounds of pork and veal. That is to say nothing of fowl, which did not even enter his calculations.

Another complication of M. Jean's job is that every roast must be a masterpiece of the culinary art. One diner will want his beef rare and tempting, another will prefer his done in medium style, while still another may not be satisfied with anything but a perfectly well-done roast. All of them want that fine, brown color that lures the appetite.

This is a large order, but the Waldorf's six kitchens are well equipped to handle it. M. Jean has help, of course, in preparing these meats for the oven, and employs every mechanical device available. He is shown here using a special roast meat thermometer—so that delicious entrées may be placed on the hotel tables cooked to exactly the desired turn.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—The Duke, a pleasant-looking youth of twenty-three, had broken his leg in a summer house in Southampton, seeking shelter from a terrific rain storm. He makes himself at home six years ago his father had died in China, leaving the lad, Barry Gilbert, to fight his way back to the States. He did not recollect ever having had a mother. Diving at the fire-side, he was surprised by the arrival of a butler, Willets, a chancery lawyer, who came as a maid. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Riddell, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff him out. His supposed parents have left for Germany. Next morning he gives a letter for his "mother." He opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come, and returning a hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had penniless him intentionally. Barry packes the money intending to return it to him. However, Evans, to take him to Montana, intending to disappear there. On the way, he assists Judge Hambridge and his daughter, Patricia, whose car had broken down. Believing he is Jack Riddell, she invites him to dinner the following Thursday.

CHAPTER II.—Barry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer. Mr. Riddell, through his connection with the law, secures Hambridge's taking orders from Tammany Hall in a condemnation proceeding. Harry meets Peter Winslow, prominent attorney. Winslow tells Harry that Judge Hambridge had seen an accident in which a woman was killed by a taxicab at home. Harry finds the wife of the real Jack Riddell awaiting him. Her husband is in jail in New York, charged with the murder of Mike Kelly. Tammany house.

CHAPTER III.—The girl, Peggy, tells Harry how she had met Jack in Florida and married him as Jay Rogers. Jack lost his job, and they went to New York, where she got work at the "Cocoanut Bar." There she was accused of trying to pick the pocket of Mike Kelly, and was arrested. Her husband went to see her to induce him to drop the charge. Later Kelly was found dead, his skull crushed by a decanter. Harry suggests he can help as Jack Riddell, and Mrs. Rogers agrees. Judge Hambridge delivers a decision in the condemnation suit in which Kelly had been interested.

Harry decided that evening to draft a letter for the real Jack Riddell to urge him to visit him again. Something told him that whatever the boy wrote himself would be read and resented. That would make the old boy suspicious and Harry didn't want that to happen. Could Pat be jealous?

"How soon can you come over?" she inquired. "Marian's not here yet, and I'll be late, but I simply can't wait to hear your adventures in chivalry."

As he dictated, Harry kept thinking of that conversation. Absurd that Patricia Hambridge could be worried by his attachment to the "glittering lady." Willets and Pat both going disappears. Or do I merely imagine it?

Pat's disapproval, at least, was depressingly evident from the moment he saw her.

She met him at the door, looking lovelier than ever.

"The one girl in the world for me," Harry thought.

"Let's sit on the sun porch," Pat greeted him. "Mother'll be down in a minute. Marian's come over by train from New London. She's dressing. Come over and we'll go to the beach after dinner. You still say why you wanted to go to his father's office under the name of Harry Gilbert?"

"Franklin, I'm disappointed to you, the old Duke, and obviously meant it."

Harry knew she would reply, the Judge's eyes began to glow in her face.

"It doesn't fair, she said, to bring you and Peter into it." Just because I got to this house at dinner. You still say why you wanted to go to his father's office under the name of Harry Gilbert?"

"Franklin, I'm disappointed to you, the old Duke, and obviously meant it."

"Mother, sir!"

"You've been acting queer ever since the night Mrs. Rogers spent here. I don't know what you heard that night."

"Do you mean eavesdropping?"

There was a patient surprise in the man's voice.

"Not me, sir. I've got my post due to remember. I've been a bidder with some of the less families."

"All right," Harry assured him.

"Yes, that I look at the kind of business that alienated me from my father. Well, I'm not. That night, too, is the wife of a man I met in Florida."

And, for the third time that week, Harry related his story.

"She's a brave little kid," he concluded, "and she's in trouble up to her neck. I'm going to stand by her. I've got a job on my father's newspaper — under an assumed name, because I want to win out on my own. I've cabled my mother for money, and everything I can get goes to that lady until her husband can win on his own. I'm going to be in town most of the time now, working my head off."

"Yes, sir."

"I've been a leafer most of my life—and this is the beginning of a new chapter."

"Thank you, sir," Willets said. "I'm very pleased, sir. If you don't mind my saying so, very pleased."

There were three memos of telephone messages from Pat.

Looking at them, on the library table, Harry went on grinning. He called her immediately, and she asked where he'd been all week. When he told her, she seemed almost annoyed. "So you've deserted us for a chorus girl," she said.

Could Pat be jealous?

"How soon can you come over?" she inquired. "Marian's not here yet, and I'll be late, but I simply can't wait to hear your adventures in chivalry."

As he dictated, Harry kept thinking of that conversation. Absurd that Patricia Hambridge could be worried by his attachment to the "glittering lady." Willets and Pat both going disappears. Or do I merely imagine it?

FERTILIZED GRASSLAND HAS NEW VALUE IN 1936

Top-dressing of grassland, a prometh of cutting feed costs on many Maine farms, may take a new importance this year with the passage of the soil conservation and domestic allotment act, according to Oscar L. Wyman, assistant crops specialist in the Extension Service.

"Fertilizing hay land may be considered a soil improvement practice under the act, and if so, make it possible for the farmer who fertilizes his fields to share in benefit payments. If this proves true, these payments will pay a part of the cost of grassland improvement," Mr. Wyman says.

He also calls the attention of those who plan to top-dress hay land to important points: "First, fertilizer gives better returns on good land than on poor sod; second, if possible, apply fertilizer before the grass starts to grow. This gives a first cutting, and lessens the risk of burning tender grass; third, distribute fertilizer evenly. Fertilizer spreads sideways very little if it is in the soil; fourth, cut fertilized hay early or you will lose much of the value from the added plant food."

NEWSPAPER PROGRESS RESULT OF INVENTION FIFTY YEARS AGO

The past that the modern newspaper plays in the life of the company will be the subject of a radio program to be broadcast through the courtesy of the National Broadcasting Company early in July.

Occasion for this wide tribute to the publishing industry is found in the fiftieth anniversary of the invention of the Linotype. It was this invention that freed printing from limitations of hand work and made possible the development of newspapers in the form we know today.

A prize of $500 and a trip to New York will be offered by the Maythaline Linotype Co. for the best script which best commemorates newspaper development in the last fifty years.

This paper will be glad to publish the entries of the contest and to encourage the production of a newspaper to day of the

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ON SOIL CONSERVATION

Q: What is the purpose of the soil conservation and domestic allotment act?

A: "The new program represents a sincere effort both to conserve the soil in the interests of producers and consumers and to preserve the economic gains that farmers have made during the past three years."

Q: Who will administer the act in Maine?

A: Administration of the soil-conservation program in Maine will be through state and county committees, with the agricultural Extension Service cooperating.

Q: What payments may farmers receive for complying with the terms of the act?

A: Two types of payment are to be made to cooperating farmers: A soil-conserving payment averaging $10 an acre for the United States as a whole, and a soil-building payment of up to $1 for each acre in soil-conserving and soil-building crops in 1936.

Q: How are crops classified under the act?

A: Crops are classified as soil-depleting, soil-conserving, soil-building, and neutral.

Q: What crops commonly grown in Maine are classed as soil-depleting?

A: Soil-depleting crops include corn, potatoes, all commercial canning and truck crops, strawberries, dry beans, small grains under some conditions and Hungarian, Japanese millet, soy beans, and field peas when harvested for hay or seed.

Q: What Maine crops are classed as soil-conserving?

A: Soil-conserving crops include annual legumes, when pastured or harvested; Sudan grass, Hungarian and Japanese millet, when pastured or left on the ground; perennial grasses, including timothy, redtop, orchard grass, and blue grass, without nurse crops, or with nurse crops when the nurse crops are pastured or clipped green, and winter cover crops when plowed under as green manure.

Q: What crops are classed as soil-building?

A: Soil-building crops include annual legumes when plowed under as green manure; sweet, red, alsike, mammoth, and white clover, without a nurse crop or with an approved nurse crop, and forest trees planted in 1936 and not pastured.

Q: What crops are classed as neutral?

A: Neutral crops include orchards and small fruits not interplanted, wasteland, idle crop land, and woodland other than that planted since January 1, 1934.

DOLLARS SAVED IN SOUP

By raising your own vegetables and making vegetable soup at home instead of buying it, dollars can be saved. Figures have been made out showing the actual amount that can be saved by making soup at home using vegetables that are raised on the farm. Two quarts of soup can be made at home at an actual cost of 7c. Made from home canned vegetables mixture at 5c a quart plus 2c for fat and seasonings, making it 68c per serving. Made from store vegetables, which would cost to raise 9c, less the soup would be 65c per cup.

If there were 5 people in your family and you served soup only once a week during the year, how much money would you save by raising your own vegetables and making your own soup?

On the basis of three cups per person per meal, it would be 780 cups in a year. Made at home it would cost 46.24, bought it would be $58.50. The saving would be $12.26.

"Probation After Death" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 26.

The Golden Text is: "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead." (I Peter 1:3).

Among the citations from the Bibble is the following: "Now if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say among you that there is no resurrection of the dead? If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men the most miserable. But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept." (I Corinthians 15:12,19,20).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scripture" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Jesus' unchanged physical condition after what seemed to be death was followed by his exaltation above all material conditions; and this exaltation explained his ascension, and revealed unmistakably a probationary and progressive state beyond the grave" (Page 46:20-24).

nesday evening of every month at
